

As of October 15, 2009

Paramount Digital Entertainment has retained Jonathan Stein and Constitutional Consulting, LLC, to represent Paramount Pictures' intellectual property in connection with licensing to the gaming industry on a worldwide basis.

Paramount has over 3,000 movie titles licensed to a myriad of broadcast platforms and companies. In gaming, Paramount has licensed Star Trek, Top Gun, Airplane and Godfather, among other titles.

Jonathan is one of the few lawyers to understand both gaming topics, and how movie studios such as Paramount work. Jonathan is a well-known and well-reputed lawyer in the gaming field for the past 10 years. A graduate of Harvard College and Penn Law School, where he was on law review, Jonathan worked for a number of national law firms before establishing his own practice in litigation, gaming and entertainment (see www.jsteinlaw.com).

Paramount has indicated its support of Jonathan's revolutionary idea of the "Stein lease", with little or no upfront payment from the licensee. This will hopefully allow you to develop better games at lower cost.

In addition, Paramount has endorsed Jonathan's suggestion of "subscription-based pricing" for the new generation of server-based games. This will allow you, the licensee, to interchange Paramount properties on a single-game platform, lowering your risk and increasing your revenues.

All decision-making will still flow through Paramount, and all contracts must be signed by Paramount. In addition, certain Paramount IP licenses already granted (or in negotiation) are best handled by Paramount directly. (See Authorization Letter.)

You may view a partial list of properties available at www.jsteinlaw.com, click on "Paramount IP Licensing".